I am an engineering student in Information and Communication Technologies at Lunds tekniska högskola. The education is centered on giving the core engineering competences such as mathematics, physics, and control technologies. My program specifically has given me competence in programming, communication technologies, computer security, and human centered design.

I like to face new and exciting problems where I can apply the experience that I have acquired through both my studies and through real life, but I'm not afraid of "rolling up my sleeves" and facing new and diverse problems. Because I know that after facing hardships I emerge as a better, more experienced individual.
